

A woman with brown hair tied back, wearing a light blue sweater, is standing in a modern kitchen. She is using a sleek, curved stainless steel faucet to wash fresh green herbs in a rectangular stainless steel sink. Water is flowing from the faucet into the sink. On the countertop next to the sink are two black ice cube trays and a glass of water. Above the sink is a wooden shelf with several clear glasses. The background shows a bright, airy kitchen with wooden beams and a large window.

The Water Hub: Drink. Clean. Prep.

Most food preparation starts around the kitchen sink. This is where you wash your hands and prep your food. Once you realize the importance of water within the kitchen, the value of the water hub becomes crystal clear. Clean – Prep – Dispose - Consume. Combining several stand-alone solutions for a perfectly integrated system will ensure seamless integration with one another. Hence the rise of the water hub.

In drinking water, preparing food and cleaning up, we spend more than half our time in the kitchen at the water hub. So why not make this station work for you?

A modern water hub very often includes a multifunctional mixer or a regular mixer and secondary tap that offers regular hot and cold water as well as filtered drinking water and instant near boiling water all at one station. The convenience around the water hub is further increased, with the modern sink now offering several accessories for easier food preparation and cleaning. Finally, no water hub would be complete without a built-in waste bin and food waste disposal unit. All items working hand in hand to make food preparation easier, faster and more hygienic.

In breaking down the components further to understand their full value, we start with the mixer tap. Most consumers appreciate the value of warm and cold water on demand for everyday kitchen functions. However, with the rise in popularity of bottled water, the water hub has evolved to offer filtered drinking water on demand - eliminating the need for plastic bottles. Why carry home heavy bottled water, and be left with the task of safely disposing the empty bottles once used, when filtered water can be available on tap? In addition, these very same taps will also offer instant near boiling water. Say goodbye to the kettle and wasted time boiling water. With around 60 cups of boiling water per hour, the perfect cup of tea is only seconds away. Unfortunately, with food preparation comes waste, and what faster way to dispose of food waste than the hidden gem in the water hub- the food waste disposal unit. Simply flush the food waste down you sink outlet, grind and move on. No more smelly bins or unwanted pests as food waste is eliminated quickly and efficiency. Food waste accounts for about 30% of all kitchen waste. For the balance, the built-in bin below the sink completes the water hub. Of course, any good water hub needs to take into account the realities of space restrictions in a kitchen. That is why all components are designed to fit into one cabinet, neatly taking up different positions inside the cabinet to work together performing their different functions.

Drink. Clean. Prep. Dispose... It all flows naturally with the water hub in place.
